

Young Person's Guarantee

Connecting Employers with Young People

The Young Person's Guarantee aims to give all young people, aged 16-24 in Scotland, the chance to succeed despite the economic impacts of the coronavirus pandemic. To support young talent and build your future workforce you can engage with the Young Person's Guarantee by supporting the five asks of employers.

The five employer asks are:

- 1 Prepare young people for the world of work
- 2 Create opportunities for young people who face the greatest barriers to work
- 3 Invest in a skilled workforce through apprenticeships, training and upskilling opportunities
- 4 Create jobs and opportunities suitable for 16-24 year olds
- 5 Ensure a work environment which supports all young people and provides fair work

There are numerous benefits for employers supporting and employing young people. You can:

- Build a skilled workforce for now and in the future.
- Gain new ideas and insight from a generationally diverse team.
- Help with recruitment, retention and succession planning.
- Develop and motivate existing staff.

• Apprenticeships

Apprenticeships enable young people to undertake work-based learning, with the work they undertake contributing to their qualification. There are three levels of apprenticeship available in Scotland, covering a wide range of frameworks. Further details are below:

Foundation Apprenticeship	Undertaken while the young person is still at school as one of their subject choices in fifth and sixth year, giving the same qualification as a Higher. Pupils spend part of their time at College and part on a work-placement with an employer, as part of their school timetable. This qualification gives young people the chance to meet employers, learn more about careers in the sector and put their skills into practice.
Modern Apprenticeship	Suitable for school-leavers aged 16 years and over, Modern Apprentices are full-time employees who undertake their training while they work, meaning they can apply what they are learning in a practical way. Training leads to industry-recognised qualifications including SVQs.
Graduate Apprenticeship	Combining academic knowledge with skills development, these give individuals the chance to gain a degree, up to Masters Degree level, while working. To undertake a Graduate Apprenticeship, individuals must be aged 16 years and over and able to work in Scotland. Several Universities offer Graduate Apprenticeships through distanced learning, making them suitable for people based in Orkney.
